BIG BUILDING

(Continued from Page One) of bringing their dead. Many of the mothers, who lost children, are prostrated and several may die. Some of the victims were mothers of large families and among those bereft of mothers are several infants. These were being cared for by older sisters, red-eyed from weeping and worn from want of sleep.

Curious throngs have gathered since yesterday about the mountaineering building where so many met a terrible death. It has been necessary to keep detachment of police constant to do duty. Among the mourners, are many coal miners who have brought lots of clothing, charred particles of wood or anything connected with the disaster, as mementos.

The morgue, where the blackened and disfigured bodies are laid to rest, has likewise been the scene of mortally curious. Many frantic relatives are among the visitors. They come from one block-and-a-half in another, seeking to find sister, mother or sweetheart. Now and then a body is identified, frequently accompanied by a shriek, as a mother swoons and drops to the floor. Too grief-stricken, begins adequate description.

The death of some of the victims at the fire leaves whole families in absolute want in some instances and immediate relief work is made necessary.

Souvenir day Gene tomorrow.

General B. J. Vilhena, a veteran of the Boer war, is in the city on a business trip.

J. Weismann, of the Golden Rule Dry Goods company, underwent a slight operation at St. Joseph's Sanatorium today.

ELKS DRAW PLANS FOR CLUBHOUSE

New Building Will Be One of Handsomest in Southwest and Will Be Credit to the Order and City.

Three sets of plans for the proposed new Elks club house, to be erected by Albuquerque Lodge, No. 461, B. P. O. E., adjoining the theater building on Gold Avenue, have been submitted. The designs were drawn respectively by Architects E. W. Roberts and J. LaDelle and John Lee Clarke.

The difference in the three sets of plans is mainly one of architectural detail, the general interior arrangement being substantially the same in all. Mr. Roberts' design calls for a building of colonial style, while Mr. LaDelle's follows the Spanish renaissance. All of the drawings submitted have been placed on exhibition in the chancery rooms of the local lodge.

It is the intention of the Albuquerque Elks Lodge to erect a building which will not only in itself be a credit to the city, but will take high rank among the Elks' club houses of the country. Great enthusiasm prevails among the local Elks on the subject, and it is expected that the active work of building will be begun in a short time.

WINDOW DRAWS BIG CROWDS

Decorative Effect at Rosenwald's Store is Admiration of Pedestrians Who Block Sidewalks to Gaze at It.

Pedestrians on Central Avenue could not but pause and admire the beautiful window displays at Rosenwald's store, as notice of their spring opening. The display that attracted the most attention is a tableau representing "A Modern Hebrew." In the center is a limpid pool of water upon which water lilies flash their golden rays. Grouped near are the figures of "modern Hebrews," beautiful robed women who, the simple robes of former days would scarce recognize as sisters. The general color scheme is white, with Easter flowers draped in profusion, altogether making the most striking and artistic window display that has ever been shown in Albuquerque.

The credit for this handsome group must be given to F. H. Brumhart, who conceived and carried out the entire idea. Mr. Brumhart's windows have always caused admiring comment, but on this occasion he has outdone all previous efforts and has turned out a display that would reflect credit on any store in the country.

METCALF TALKS ON SOCIALISM

Interesting Lecture on Much Discussed Topic Delivered at the University.

W. P. Metcalf, well known as one of the leading exponents of the doctrines of Socialism, this morning delivered an instructive lecture to the students of the University of New Mexico in the assembly hall of that institution.

Mr. Metcalf explained very briefly the popular misconception as to what Socialism is and what the aims of its followers are. He showed that the Socialist does not seek to pull down or destroy wealth, but that his endeavor is to secure co-operation between the various units of society with a view to bringing about a more just and equal distribution of wealth.

Mr. Metcalf invited his hearers to put any questions to him that they might desire, and the responses showed the great interest in the subject that his address had awakened. The speaker has given long study and deep thought to the subject of his lecture, and is well informed on all matters pertaining to Socialism and its problems.
